

Resilience Breaking the Silence 2022 Performers

Raegen Pietrucha

Raegen Pietrucha writes, edits, and consults creatively and professionally. Her chapbook, An Animal I Can't Name, won the 2015 Two of Cups Press competition; her debut poetry collection, Head of a Gorgon, is forthcoming with Vegetarian Alcoholic Press in May; and she has a memoir in progress. She received her MFA from Bowling Green State University, where she was an assistant editor for Mid-American Review. Her work has been published in Cimarron Review, Puerto del Sol, and other journals. Connect with her at raegenmp.wordpress.com and on Twitter @freeradicalrp.

Harley Lampkin

Harley Lampkin is from California and obtained her bachelor's of music at the University of the Pacific in 2020. She is thankful to be part of a project that acknowledges the trauma she still feels from a physically abusive relationship which ended while she was in college. She has performed in Carnegie Hall and the Grand Ole' Opry in nationally recognized ensembles, sung at Take 5 Jazz Club, and has had masterclasses with renowned jazz singers Carmen Bradford and Dee Daniels. She is the 2019 winner of the Stockton Opera Guild Kathe Underwood Competition and the 2020 winner of Opera Modesto's Kristina Townsend Competition. Outside of music, she volunteers full-time as a student success coach and after-school music teacher at a K-8 school in the Chatham community.

Daisy Gonzalez

Daisy Gonzalez (pronouns she/her/ella) is a first-generation Mexican American born and raised in Chicago. She has been a part of Resilience's Art Therapy & Journaling/Meditation Group Therapy. Motivated by her own healing journey she works intentionally to be a support and resource for others, so that others don't feel as alone as she once did. Daisy is a certified bilingual advocate for survivors of domestic violence in IL and also advocates for survivors of sexual violence, mental/emotional health, and community care. Additionally, Daisy is on the path to becoming a certified trauma-informed life coach. To connect with Daisy you can follow her instagram page Cuidarte_Day.

Resilience Breaking the Silence 2022 Performers

Resilience Music & Art Therapy Group

Resilience's first music and art therapy support group, called My Music, My Art, My Story. Together a group of 6 survivors collaborated over a three week period to make musical choices, collaborated in bandlab, wrote individual lyric verses, recorded themselves, and produced this song on the topic of ownership of narrative.

Yoseline Miranda

Yoseline is a student at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville. She enjoys writing and painting, this is her first time participating in the Break the Silence event. She is super excited to be a part of something new and rewarding.

Sunshine Lombre

Southside Chicago native Sunshine Lombre is a freelance dancer & poet who specializes in expressing sensuality and emotional authenticity through her words & movements. Sunshine performs poetry and choreography various shows throughout the country while also curating seasonal artist showcases based around Black heritage. Sunshine strives to share her passion for Spoken Word and choreography while uplifting Black communities worldwide through teaching creative writing classes through the Chicago Public Library system. She recently released a poetry music album called "Fading Away".
